Website 1: <http://www.london2012.com/>

The screenshot shows the official London 2012 Olympic Games website. At the top, there is a navigation bar with the London 2012 logo, the slogan "Inspire a generation", and the dates "Olympic Games 27 July - 12 August". It also includes links for "Cookies policy", "BSL", "Easy Read", accessibility options, and a search bar. A "Next live" section highlights "Hockey Women's Hockey" at 8:30. Below the navigation bar, there are tabs for "Schedule & Results", "Medals", "Sports", "Athletes", "Countries", "Join in", "Spectators", "News", "Photos", "Shop", "Tickets", and "Paralympic Games".

The main content area is for "06 August 2012 Olympic Games - Day 10". The primary feature is a large video player showing a 100m sprint race. The video title is "Super Bolt retains 100m title". The video shows Usain Bolt in a yellow Jamaica singlet leading the race, with other competitors like Bailey and Gatlin in red USA singlets. A "Voice of the Games" section below the video features a 1:56 video clip with the text: "We love this image of the men's 1500m semi-final competitors running past the Olympic Cauldron." Below this text is a small image of runners.

To the right of the video player is a "Next events" section listing upcoming matches:

- 6 Aug 8:30 Women's Hockey - Preliminary Round Group B: New Zealand - Germany
- 6 Aug 9:00 Men's Basketball - Preliminary Round Group B: Australia - Russia
- 6 Aug 9:30 Men's Volleyball - Preliminary Round Group A: Australia - Poland
- 6 Aug 9:30 Men's Handball - Preliminaries Group B: Hungary - Serbia

Below the video player is a "Medal count" section with a table showing the top five countries:

	G	S	B	Total
1 CHN	30	17	14	61
2 USA	28	14	18	60
3 GBR	16	11	10	37
4 KOR	10	4	6	20
5 FRA	8	8	9	25

At the bottom right, there is a large empty box labeled "All events:".

Weymouth Journal: Charming Retreat Plays Host to Sailing, but Crowds Do Not Follow

By BARRY BEARAK

Alex Trautwig for The New York Times

A choice piece of Weymouth waterfront was set aside for the Bayside Festival, an area for evening concerts, pubs, stores, exhibits and a skate park. On Friday, the organizers closed the site because of "dire visitor numbers."

WEYMOUTH, England — The bubonic plague is said to have come ashore in this coastal town, carried by fleas infected by rats. The so-called Black Death quickly spread throughout the British Isles.

"We try to play that one down, especially in light of some people's thinking
